

Gravel and Chipping

There are many British decorative aggregates available, silver-grey and pink granites, black and green basalt's, red porphyry, cream Cotswold, light grey-white limestone, heather blue and green slate a variety of flint mixtures, calcite and many more. All providing a different variety of attractive finishes. Some are quite famous while others probably not as quite well known as they might be. All together, they provide a variety of size, colour and texture far greater than the often more expensive imported materials.

With over 20 different gravels ranging in size from 10mm upwards, and colours from polar white gravel imported from Spain, multi colored apricot gravel from the orient through to more locally sourced gravel from Staffordshire there is bound to be a gravel to suit your taste.
